Policies against depopulation in mountain areas
The good practice represents a single territorial initiative to favour new enterprises in mountain area and consequently new inhabitants.

In Italy there is a more general problem to create a framework of welcoming policies to integrate at least three fundamental aspects to fight depopulation in mountain area: work, house and territorial services.

Nevertheless, most part of Italian local experience in this direction has been financed by Leader measure.
Transferability to other areas

The good practice could be transferred in another territorial context, but it is important to:

- define the element of success necessary to the implementation of good practice
- take into account different territorial contexts
